DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

1. The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

2. Claims 9-16 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, because the specification, while being enabling for the remaining claims, does not reasonably provide enablement for claims 9-16. The specification does not enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to practice the invention commensurate in scope with these claims. Claim 9 is limited to "having content files displayed on web browsers". "Web browsers" are software, and have no display capability.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102 and 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-2, 4-6, 9-10, 12-13, 21 and 24 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by or, in the alternative, under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as obvious over by Bull et al.

Art Unit: 3622

6. Bull et al. teaches (independent claims 1, 9, 21 and 24) an apparatus and method for hyperlinking specific words in content or in text-containing files, or displayed in an application, to turn the words into advertisements, the method comprising: connecting a content provider server to the Internet, said content provider having content files to be displayed (col. 3 lines 31-34 and 66-67); providing an advertiser web page so as to be accessible over the Internet (col. 5 lines 11-12); and connecting an ad server (advertiser's computer system 400, col. 8 line 10 and Fig. 1) to the Internet; wherein the ad server provides a hot link (col. 8 line 20), which reads on a hypertext link or hyperlink (Microsoft Press Computer Dictionary), to an advertiser-chosen word or phrase in a content file to link an Internet-enabled web browsing device connected to the Internet to said advertiser web page (col. 8 lines 3-4 and col. 15 lines 24-25 and 39-42).
7. Bull et al. does not explicitly teach a hypertext anchor. However, under the principles of inherency (MPEP § 2112.02), since the reference invention necessarily performs the method claimed, the method claimed is considered to be anticipated by the reference invention. As evidence tending to show inherency, it is noted in para. 4 above that the reference does teach a web page placed in storage with a hot link/hypertext link (col. 8 line 20-22). Said link must then be linked to something in the stored web page and that is the link's anchor. Alternatively, because it enables the storage of web pages having hyperlinks to ads, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to anchor those hyperlinks to key words in said stored web pages.
8. Bull et al. also teaches at the citations given above claims 4-6, 12 and 13. Bull et al. also teaches claims 2 and 10 (col. 8 lines 21-22).
9. Claims 3, 7, 11, 14-15, 22 and 25 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Bull et al. Bull et al. does not teach (claims 3, 11, 22 and 25) using a script to provide a hypertext anchor and (claims 7 and 14-15) using frames to display the content provider URL in a browser window. Official notice is taken (MPEP § 2144.03) that it was common, at the time of the instant invention, to use script to provide a hypertext anchor and display the URL of content in a browser window using frames. Because it is efficient to use common and well known practices, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add to the teachings of Bull et al. the use of script to provide a hypertext anchor and the use of frames to display the content provider URL in a browser window.

10. Claims 8, 16, 23 and 26 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Bull et al. in view of Portuesi. Bull et al. does not teach using a tracking URL to link to said advertiser web page. Portuesi teaches using a tracking URL to link to a web page (col. 4 lines 47-65). Because Portuesi teaches that this enabling linking to a time-based medium (col. 2 lines 22-24), it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add Portuesi to the teachings of Bull et al.
11. Claims 17-19 and 27-29 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Bull et al. in view of Murray.
12. Bull et al. does not teach (independent claims 17 and 27) the advertiser compensating at least one of a content provider and an entity that selects said hypertext anchor. Murray teaches the advertiser compensating at least one of a content provider and an entity that selects said hypertext anchor (col. 8 lines 19-20). Because it facilitates the acceptance of advertising (col. 2 lines 22-24), it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add Murray to the teachings of Bull et al.
13. Murray also teaches claims 18 and 28 at the citation given above.
14. Neither of the references teach the compensation schemes of claims 19 and 29. Official notice is taken (MPEP § 2144.03) that it several of the compensation schemes were common at the time of the instant invention. Because it is efficient to use common and well-known practices, it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add these compensation schemes to the teachings of Bull et al. and Murray.
15. Claims 20 and 30 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being obvious over Bull et al. in view of Murray and further in view of Portuesi. Neither Bull et al. nor Murray teaches using a tracking URL to link to said advertiser web page. Portuesi teaches using a tracking URL to link to a web page (col. 4 lines 47-65). Because Portuesi teaches that this enabling linking to a time-based medium (col. 2 lines 22-24), it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art, at the time of the invention, to add Portuesi to the teachings of Bull et al. and Murray.
